

Michael Santillo is a licensed clinical alcohol and drug counselor with over 30 years of experience in the behavioral health field. He is the Chief Executive Officer at John Brooks Recovery Center, one of the leading residential, outpatient and medication assisted treatment providers of substance use disorders treatment in New Jersey.

He has designed, implemented and supervised a wide array of treatment and recovery support services including residential and outpatient substance use and mental disorders treatment programs, medication-assisted treatment programs, mobile methadone vans, supportive housing services, recovery/sober housing services, jail and prison re-entry programs, primary health care services, opioid overdose recovery programs and recovery community centers.

Mr. Santillo has worked as a consultant to the New Jersey Administrative Courts and Public Defenders office. He has served as a member of SAMHSA's State Best Practices Opioid Misuse, Prevention and Treatment Panel and Recovery Research and Evaluation Technical Expert Panel, NJ-DMHAS Professional Advisory Committee, NJ BRSS TACS Policy Academy, Administrative Office of the Courts Drug Court Treatment Subcommittee, Coalition for Addiction Recovery Supports Advisory Committee, National Council for Behavioral Health Addiction Committee and Pew Charitable Trust, Bloomberg Opioid Initiative COVID-HARTS Advisory Board.