

Justin Neece bio

Justin Neece brings visionary leadership experience from multiple Fortune 500 to early stage growth companies. In his role as Chief Executive Officer, Neece has transformed i2i into one of the top population health management companies in the healthcare technology market. He has developed unique domain knowledge from field work with provider organizations and health plans launching alternative payment models since 2008. Neece holds degrees from Tennessee Technological University, Middle Tennessee State University, and the University of Chicago, Booth School of Business.